

urban design

Urban cores are important components of the public realm and help define a community's aesthetic quality, identity, and economic opportunity. At Britina, we are committed to improving the public environment of our cities, towns and neighborhoods.

As a multi-disciplinary team, we are able to provide a comprehensive approach to each project, ensuring the planning and design process is both holistic and innovative. Drawing from the creative interactions between our planning, design and construction specialists, we create places that are functional, viable, innovative and cost-effective.

Working with your community, the Britina team can help re-envision your public spaces, making them more lively, safe and inviting destinations. Utilizing a creative approach to each project, we will take the time to uncover the rich history of your place, the perspectives of your community, and the potential of your site. Drawing from our deep digging into the project background and community perspectives, we will create the "look and feel" you are after in the new unveiling!

We believe historic downtown streetscapes are different.

They are important gathering places for community... they reflect the history, culture and unique character of their region and people... they are the “heart” of a community.

Streetscapes should create a physical environment that is representative of the qualities that make each downtown special, warm and inviting.

A revitalized downtown is a successful downtown

Large or small - revitalization efforts make downtowns places people want to be. Revitalized downtowns attract more visitors, have higher occupancy rates, and make memorable venue for events, performances and civic celebrations – increasing the economic prosperity of your entire community.

Our approach is the difference

As award-winning experts in downtown streetscape and revitalization efforts, Britina Design Group blends an innovative public involvement process, exceptional design, and visionary economic strategies to help you rediscover the heart of your community and bring it to life.
